Trams begin daylight testing on Nottingham light rail extension

9 Feb, 2015

Nottingham's new Citadis trams have begun day-time testing on the NET network's extensions to Clifton and Chilwell.

Daylight test runs were due to begin this morning (February 9) in The Meadows and Wilford Lane following a series of night trials on the Clifton line.

Phil Hewitt, chief executive of NET concessionaire Tramlink Nottingham, said: "Major construction work on the extensions to Clifton and Chilwell is virtually complete with track having been laid along the entire route."

This meeting by invitation only, where MPs, Stakeholders etc., within the Light Rail industry and invited members of the Public will have a chance to discuss debate and raise questions concerning Light Rail & Trams.
